

Scaffolds to Support the Success of All Students

To facilitate the active participation of all students in Cybertales[®], planning and preparation may be focused around two core questions: What do good readers do and what do good writers do? (Core questions and supporting resources have been taken from Reciprocal Teaching and Balanced Literacy.)

We suggest you use a backwards planning approach to keep the main goal of improving as writers in focus for both teacher and students. This, as well as Universal Design for Learning helps identify possible barriers to learning for students and individualize instruction for their varied needs.

What do
good
readers
do?

What do
good
writers
do?

